I Unveiling of the Southern Cross Music Furnished by 15th Cavalry Band and Choir.

Robert L. Taylor of Tennesse, in a | speech delivered at the Confederate memorial exercises in Arlington yesterday. drew a distinction between the 'regenerated" and the "new" south.

"There is no new south," he urged. 'The south of today is merely the regeneration of the old, with the spear wound in its side and the marks of the nail in its hands and feet."

Senator Taylor scored those who continually rake up the ashes of sectionalsm. Recently, he said, he had stood before the statue of Gen. Grant in the Capitol and he had been proud to be able to say that the Union leader was an American like himself.

up its battlefields and facing the future with all the fearlessness with which gaced the guns of '61. "There is no incompatibility." he maintained, "between loyalty to the Confederate cause and loyalty to the Union, for it would be ignoble for the south to turn its back on the cause for which its fathers gave their lives." Several Thousand Present. Despite the extreme heat, several thousand persons attended the memorial services, of which the address of Senator Taylor was the principal feature. Among the floral offerings placed upon the graves of the 264 Confederate soldiers buried in Arlington was a wreath from the President. A wreath of roses was placed around the monument of Gen. Joseph Wheeler, while the entire Confederate section of the cemetery was literally strewn with flowers.

The main part of the services was held in the center of the Confederate section. Among those who occupied seats on the platform were Col. H. A. Herbert, formerly Secretary of the Navy; Mrs. Virginia F. McSherry, Miss Nannie R. Heth, lor, Mrs. John M. Hickey, Mrs. Belle Riley, Mrs. U. S. Thompson, Mrs. Mulcare, Mrs. Gustavius Werber, Mrs. Wayne, Mrs. J. F. Callaphan, Mrs. G. S. Covington, R. S. Denny and others. Following the invocation, which was pronounced by the Rev. Randolph H. Mc-Kim, chaplain of Camp 171, United Confederate Veterans, and the address of Senator Taylor, William H. Poindexter, a brother of the senator from Washington, recited "The Bond of Blood." After the speeches the "Southern Cross," a large floral piece was unveiled. During this part of the ceremony a living cross, composed of fifty members of the United Daughters of the Confederacy. was formed. The Confederate Choir sang while the cross was being unveiled.

Decorating the Graves.

The decorating of the graves was in charge of various committees. Mrs. Virginia F. McSherry, president general of the United Daughters of the Confederacy: Miss Nannie Heth, president of the Southern Relief Society; Mrs. Wallace Streater, treasurer of the District of Columbia Division of the United Daughters of the Confederacy, and Miss Lillian Cheno-weth of Mississippi composed the com-mittee that decorated the grave of Gen.

Veterans of Lee, Jackson and Johnson were grouped about the monument to the 2,000 unknown dead, while Mrs. Mc-Sherry and Miss Heth placed the flowers as a tribute to the memory of these 2.000. During this part of the ceremonies the Confederate Choir sang "Onward, Christian Soldiers.'
